TIMELY TOPICS

THE PESSIMIST

Do you ever meet him? The man that has "the blues." The man that is always trying to make you believe that everything is going wrong. You cannot help but notice him, for his voice is generally louder than anyone else, and generally his influence, strange to say, is quite powerful. He gets his strength from the fact that he always wears a pair of in visible dark blue glasses. Consequently everything he sees is blue, a dark, discouraging, disheartening, blue.

You have heard him damn everything under the sun as bad.

If it rains, we have had too much of it already, he never saw such a country as this for rain, he will go to British Columbia where it don't rain. If it does not rain, the country is simply going to the dogs for the want of it. He never saw such a country as this, no rain, no nothing.

If the crops are a little below the average, he never did think that this was the country for crops anyway, he will go next summer to the Dakotas or somewhere else where crops can be grown. If the crops are marvellously good, such as we see this year, he says: Too much straw! Besides, look how the wind has blown the grain. A fellow has got to work like blazes to get in his grain. And then says he, with a sweep of his mighty arm: "What good is a crop anyway? Who gets the advantage of it?" He has been in this country fourteen years, more or less, and has never yet had what he calls a crop. Down in the Dakotas, or away in San Salvador, or some other marvellous place, he could grow grain, proper grain, and he is going to hike there soon.

"Bah!" says he, "Farming is no good, never did do good to any man. A fellow has to work and work like the deuce to get two or three thousand dollars, and then what good is it to him—he has got to spend it." Then he will begin a tirade against the implement men, the store-keepers, and even Timothy Eaton's goods are no good; "fact is," says he, "you have to go back to the state of Iowa, or Illinois, or back in Eastern Canada, or perhaps over to Old England before you can get goods to suit you in quality and in price." The wonder is that he did not stop in that lovely paradise over the border, or in that lovely land across the seas. And a greater wonder is that he does not get a move on him and go away to B. C., or Washington, or Timbuctoo, where living is so cheap, and where they grow fruit, and where a fellow can live for nothing and have to do no work.

or after a hail storm. He never builds up a country; he never adds to the value of a farm. Like someone I know, who has never stayed in one place six years in his life, he is a wanderer on the face of the earth. He would confer a kindness upon humanity if he would only go and settle in the Sahara desert and stay there.

What say you?

THE OPTIMIST

They are as widely separated in their opinions as are the poles, the pessimist and the optimist. The pessimist is like a halstorm in harvest. The optimist is like a lovely summer day, spreading cheer all around. You have often met him, have you not? He puts you on the back, and says: "Hello!

Cheer up; what's the matter, old boy?" and then he says: "Half of my crop's hailed out, but I'm just going to put in some fall wheat and try again." You don't find him crying over spilt milk; he keeps on smiling until the cow is ready to milk again. You say to him, "What do you think of this country, George?" "What do I think of it?" replies he. "Why it's just the best country that man ever had the privilege of living in."

Says he: "I came out two hundred dollars ahead last year after all expenses were paid, and I hope to come out five hundred ahead this year." And you hide your head for shame as you remember how much you cursed your luck because you did not clear five thousand last year, as you had set your heart on.

Our friend the optimist says he came into this country to make a home for himself and family, and though he has only been here a few years he has already succeeded beyond his expectations. And there you have the secret of his content; he does not aim at an impossible height, he does not stretch out beyond his reach, but he wins every time and all the time. You love him because he is bright and cheerful and will acknowledge defeat at any time.

You invite him to your home on Sundays because he comes as a ray of sunlight, a bit of cheer, and you say when he leaves, "well, come again soon"; and you mean it, because he does you good.

Well, we can choose which of these cults we will follow, the former or the latter.

A man ought not to be able to find time to go grousing around, whatever business he is in. This country should be filled with happy optimists, people who believe this is the best country, and that things are happening all the time for the best, for everyone's good. Three cheers for the optimist.

lowing, and it has its application:

A severe lesson in honesty among those who find lost articles and fail to return or advertise them is much needed. It is either not generally known, or the knowledge is disregarded, that an effort must be made publicly to restore to the owner anything picked up by persons on the street or other places, and until this is done the finder rests under suspicion of having stolen the article in question.

Politics are very quiet here. It hardly seems possible that we are on the eve of a momentous election. Our farmers are too busy saving their crops to worry much about such trifling things as elections.

From reports received the frosts of last week does not appear to have caused much, if any, damage to the grain in this district. It is hoped that the present fine weather will now continue until the harvest is over.

Messrs. Drumheller and Cole-ridge, proprietors of the C. C. ranch, arrived in Cayley on Monday and were met at the station by Jack Drumheller and driven to the ranch. They would certainly have some great crops to see when they get there.

Rev. F. Bushfield of Red Willow was in Cayley for a day or two last week. Mr. Bushfield reports the church work at Red Willow in a very flourishing condition, and that since conference he has built a new parsonage there.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvas of Southampton, Ontario, are visiting their sons here, Ed. and Jack Elvas. They are taking a trip through to the Coast, visiting their children in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. So far they conclude that the best crops they have seen in the West are in the Cayley district. 'Tis the same old story everyone tells who have seen the crops in other places and then come to the Cayley district.

The song of the binder we hear once again; Tis muffled and low, for the yield is not light,
And we hear it, hear it, from north till night!

There is more joy in a printing office over one sinner who pays in advance and abuses the editor on every possible occasion than there is over ninety and nine who borrow the paper and sing its praises without contributing a cent to keep it out of the poor house.

Report all items of interest to this office. They will be appreciated and each item will help to make the paper that much more interesting. We cannot get all the news, but with your help we can get the lion's share, and that is what we wish to do. We want all the news that's new.

Public worship in the Presbyterian hall next Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.; bible school at 10:15 a.m. In the morning the subject will be "The Brotherhood of Man," and in the evening, "The Certainty of Harvest." In the bible school the lesson will be on "The Companions of Daniel in the Fiery Furnace."

We regret to announce the death of the six-month-old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Elvas, which occurred on Monday evening of last week, after but a few hours illness. The interment took place in the Cayley cemetery on the Wednesday following. Great sympathy is expressed for the bereaved parents. "For of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Everybody in town likes a paper with lots of news. You may have a piece of news that you think of no interest to your neighbor and you fail to tell us, and there may be others who do exactly the same, and it is not prided. We print only what we know, or what we think we know, and we want know unless we see or hear, and we can't be everywhere.

The big coal miners' strike in Alberta has had the effect of stimulating the development of many other mines throughout the province, which will result in a great deal of good in future, as it will put many places in independent positions as regards a fuel supply.

The action brought by the provincial government to obtain control of $7,400,000 of funds of the Alberta and Great Waterways railway now lying in the custody of the Royal Bank, will be tried at the fall sitting of the supreme court, to commence on October 30, the first Tuesday in the month.

"No change in the strike situation," was the headline on some of the daily papers this week. This news is not very comforting to the average householder, considering the rapidly approaching winter. Isn't it getting about time that the government took a hand in settling this question? Great Scot! What a difference between Great Britain's handling of the late serious strike in that country to Canada's government in the present coal strike.

A LESSON IN MANNERS.

The Way a Clever American Woman Managed a Shave.

A story which belongs to a time several years ago when an English duke was a much sought after personage in New York society is told by Mr. James L. Ford in "The Broken Calif."

This duke, contemptuously noted the eagerness with which New Yorkers fawned upon him, had formed the habit of going out to dinner without troubling himself to put on an evening dress. A lady had invited him to dinner without knowing of this peculiarity and was awaiting his arrival when he sat down the door and cast a glance at her over the heads of intervening guests which said plainly that something was wrong.

She hastened into the hall to find the duke standing there clad in the checked suit and facing red to the face which seemed to him "good enough" for a dinner party of American calf worshippers. This woman, however, had presence of mind, and she advanced upon him radiant and smiling.

"No," she said decisively as she took him by the hand; "I won't accept any excuses. You've come round to tell me why it is that you can't dine here to night, and it's over so much more than you do that just to send a note. The duke's a little late, and you're just time to go home and dress and eat back here before we begin."

The assemblage opened his mouth to reply, but his hostess shut him off in a second: "No; you needn't make any explanations or excuses. Remember, you're only twenty minutes, so you must hurry."

A moment later the astonished duke found himself hurrying toward his hotel and perhaps wondering what new social force it was that was impelling him in that direction.

ADDRESS

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE MACLEOD FEDERAL RIDING.
GENTLEMEN:
Having received the nomination of the Liberal-Conservative Convention at Macleod, for the third time, as a candidate to represent this Riding in the forthcoming General Elections, I am again requesting your suffrage and support. It is so short a time until the election day, September 21st, that I will be unable to visit every portion of the Riding in person, hence I wish to place before you, as briefly as possible, the platform on which I stand, as follows:

I am in favor of, and will support, as I always have: Reciprocity.
Direct Legislation by way of Initiative, Referendum and Recall The control and operation by the Dominion of all Terminal Elevators.
Government assistance and encouragement of the Child Labor Industry.
The granting of substantial assistance for the improvement of National Highways.
The Government construction of the Hudson Bay Railway and its operation by an Independent Commission.
The extension of Rural Mail Free Delivery Districts.
The granting to the Province of ALL its natural resources—lands, timber, mines, minerals, etc.
The free admission of Agricultural Implements.
The establishment of a Permanent Commission for the adjustment of Labor Disputes.
Honesty and Economy in Administration.

In the seven years that I have had the honor to represent you at Ottawa, I have consistently worked for the benefit of the constituency to the best of my ability, and, if again chosen by you as your representative, can assure you that in the future, as in the past, you can depend on my best services in promoting the welfare of our country.

Yours sincerely,
JOHN HERRON.

A DISAPPOINTED MAN.

He took life too seriously.
He did not choose to enjoy.
He started from mental poverty.
He saved his money, but starved his mind.
His social faculties atrophied from disuse.

He thought he could not be happy without wealth.
He did not understand his husband along with his business.
He murdered his capacity for happiness in getting ready for it.
He sacrificed the friends of his youth and had no time to make new ones.
He never learned the art of extracting enjoyment from common things.
He had developed a colossal power for receding, but had never learned to give.

He was a victim of habit and routine; he never could rise above his vocation.
His only enjoyment was in repeating what he had been doing all his business life.
He had never learned to enjoy as he went along, but found that postponed happiness was a deception.
